ing as well as most dangerous to his adversaries. That Behr is able to show himself out of commission for the remainder of the season. Some thought that he should have defaulted to Ward, so that the final match could have been played, but as Hall met and beat Ward later the outcome of the tourney was later the outcome of the tourney was spldiering at the volunteer camp up the State, and he is not thought to be dangerous if he starts at all; Murray probably will not be in the East at all; Johnston has been beaten twice since he aton has been beaten twice since he came East by men of the lower classes, and he will have to show marked improvement over his form at Longwood and Chicago to be dangerous at Forest Hills; Church is still a possibility, as he is in such constant tournament practice and has such good possibilities in his play that he may make the necessary improvement before the championship starts to reach the first class: Fottrill is still in the West and not dangerous, while neither Alexander nor Wash urn has shown form this year that would make him a championship possi ility. So, taking the whole list of last year's spurs in the best company, might be watched also.

While it is true that McLoughlin, Williams, Behr and one or two other veterans still hold the top rounds of the ladder of tennis fame in this country the game was never in such a healthy condition as to-day because of the presence of such a strong and growing class of young men—I mean of players a under 20—who are developing so rapidly the truly high class form that

As to who is the best catcher in baseball, that is the hardest position on a team to judge. Headwork in handling pitchers is one of the chief points of value in a catcher, and it is one which doesn't show in the averages nor appear to the naked eye.

Ty Cobb may be the greatest batter in the whole world, as stated, but there's so much of the whole world, as stated, but there's so much of the whole world, as stated, but there's so much of the whole world where baseball is unknown that such a manner of describing. In the middle of a season already well supplied with surprises last week's degood the country over now and when EMERE, L. I., Aug. 15.—Vander-Ward, who lately has been losing Behr was quite unexpected. The Cali-sistently as he won in the early fornian had been in steady tournament fornian had been in steady tournament. the season, had two defeats practice long enough this season to have to the championship, he is not looked at askance or with patient amuse has not been settled, each section having ment, as in the old days. We have had fornia representatives for that.

Elaborate plans are being made for the championship this season and the most representative entry in the game's Longwood conditions might not be re- players who have a serious right to enany rate, he essayed upon an exhibition match with Hall as recompense to the fairly equal. But this levels to be fairly equal but the levels on the followers for the loss of the final match. He found Hall a whole lot tougher proposition than Tallant and was beaten at 542, 3-5, 6-1.

Tallant's victory over Ward, although quite a shock to followers of the game, was anything but a fluke. The veteran has many good strokes in his repertoire and when he gets them all working together, seldom as it may be, he is a hard man to beat. It will be remembered that in the 1914 metropolitan championship the veteran by a return to old time form vanquished Theodore R. Pell, and he was in much the same stroke to-day.

Tallant is nearing the half century mark and his default to Hall probably was a wise move.

The heat was intense of the two leaders weit, though the velopment puts a new complexion on the bituation, and a flex recommendation. of these Clarence J. Griffin of California and Wallace F. Johnson of Philadelphia are the most prominent and lightning might strike on either. Both are within the range of championship possibilities, but hardly more than that. Vanderblit B. Ward, Ward Dawson and Harold Throckmorton, three of the younger men who have yet fo win their spurs in the best company, might be watched also.

Dave Robertson is fast working his way up to stardom, or was when he was hurt in characteristic to characteristic to characteristic to characteristic to play for all the different batters. So now and then he sings out to Doyle: "Place me, Cap. place me." Warkes, is, according to report, "only 23 years old, but why the "only"? That is, a particularly youthful age for a bail player.
